NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Norway People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches, and, in the case of women, the urine is often tinged with blood. When little fish are eating, it feels like gravel in the hands. And taking for vacation. A job or fishing all the time. On our fishing vacation. When figures run around the page. And make his head grow dizzy. He wants to quit his job. And with the time get busy. And so he frets and stew around. And every hour keeps wishing. That he could chuck the blasted boss. And put his time in fishing. And at the same time, he keeps wishing. An air rejected wearing. Quite savagely he kicks the cat. And does some quiet swearing. If he is crossed in little things. He grows and rubs like a ball. For who could labor and keep sweet. When little fish are eating?

Orte Schruer, living on Main St., Norway, Me., says, "I have no hesitation in giving my name to be used as an endorser of Doan's Kidney Pills. I used them and they cured me of a severe attack of kidney trouble several years ago. I have applied to their use on occasions since when I have felt that my kidneys needed a tonic and this remedy has always given me prompt relief. Other members of my family have also used Doan's Kidney Pills with excellent results, and I hope any person suffering from kidney trouble will procure this remedy from Stone's drug store, and give it a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

Call of the Stream.

It's pretty tough to have to work a day's haul or fishing. To be obliged to stay in town. When little fish are eating. The man whose nerves are out of whack. Should pick up his fishing rod. And find a place to lounge. Work though it is not rest is and light. It is really quite appalling. One is not right down to it. When little fish are eating. It feels like gravel in the hands. And taking for vacation. A job or fishing all the time. On our fishing vacation. When figures run around the page. And make his head grow dizzy. He wants to quit his job. And with the time get busy. And so he frets and stew around. And every hour keeps wishing. That he could chuck the blasted boss. And put his time in fishing. And at the same time, he keeps wishing. An air rejected wearing. Quite savagely he kicks the cat. And does some quiet swearing. If he is crossed in little things. He grows and rubs like a ball. For who could labor and keep sweet. When little fish are eating?

Let Us Try It. "Don't sit round with hanging lips—Try to get a better grip. On the work before you. Put some energy in your words. When you meet a neighbor. Throw your trouble to the wind; Get right down to business. And you'll notice every day. That things are coming right your way. Stop your kicking and get a hold. On the wheel and turn it; You can never handle cash. Less you try to earn it. But the convulsions from your eyes. Stop your dream chasing. Ah! you'll notice that yet skies Wear a silver lining. If you laid the nerve to try Sneak away somewhere and die."

$100 Reward, $100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. GIBNEY & CO., Toledo, O. ELECTRIC SEPARATOR. Simple Apparatus Quickly Separates the Cream from the Milk. It is now possible to separate cream from milk by the employment of electricity. The process consists in passing an electric current through the milk to be treated, the passage of the current causing the separation of the cream from the milk. The apparatus necessary is shown in the illustration, the invention of a Kansas City man. The milk is poured into the funnel at the top and drops through the tube on to the inclined chutes, arranged one above the other. Current is supplied from adjacent storage batteries. On its passage down the chutes the milk will alternately be subjected to positive and negative current, causing the rapid separation of the particles of cream. The milk and cream will finally drop into the receptacle at the bottom, the cream collecting upon the surface, where it can be readily removed by skimming. The inventor claims that the alternating current is preferable, effecting a quicker separation of the cream than can be obtained by currents passing in one direction.

Prepotency of the Sire. About the most reliable basis of calculation as to the power of transmission, or, as it is called, prepotency of the bull, is the dairy character of the grandmothers and great-grandmothers on both sides of his pedigree. He is the stored up result of what lies back of him. The quality of his ancestors will have more effect on his offspring than the performance of his mother. She gives to him of what she inherited more than of what she does. She may be rich in inherited qualities and yet for some reason be herself only an ordinary performer. Baron Schrewe.

Genuine Cream Cheese. Genuine cream cheese is made from a rich cream thickened by souring or from sweet cream thickened with rennet. This is put in a cloth and allowed to drain, the cloth being changed several times during the draining, which requires about four days. It is then placed on a board covered with a cloth, sprinkled with salt and turned occasionally. It is ready for consumption in from five to ten days.

TABLE NAPKINS.

An Amusing History of This Very Indispensable Article.

Curiously enough, the table napkin, now deemed almost indispensable, was first used only by children and was adopted by elder members of the family only about the middle of the fifteenth century. In etiquette books of an earlier date, among other sage pieces of advice for children, are instructions about wiping their fingers and lips with their napkins.

It seems that the tablecloth was long enough to reach the door and served the grown people in place of napkins. When they did begin to use napkins they placed them first on the shoulder, then on the left arm and finally tied them about the neck. A French writer, who evidently was conservative and did not welcome the napkin kindly, records with scorn:

"The napkin is placed under the chin and fastened in the back, as if one was going to be shaved. A person told me that he wore his that way that he might not soil his beautiful curls."

It was a difficult matter to tie the two corners in the back, and it is said that these original fastenings, "Hard to make both ends meet," this custom led to the habit shown by waiters of carrying a napkin across the left arm.

Napkins became popular in France sooner than in England. At one time it was customary at great French dinners to change the napkins at every course, to perfume them with rosewater and to have them folded a different way for every guest.

About 1050 Pierre David published a "Maistre d'Hotel," which teaches how to wait on patrons properly and how to fold all kinds of table napkins in all kinds of fancy shapes.

The shapes were square, twisted, folded in bands, in the form of double and twisted shells, single shell, double melon, single melon, cock, hen and chickens, pigeon in the basket, partridge, pheasant, two capons in a pie, hare, two rabbits, sucking pig, dog with a collar, pike, carp, turbot, miter, turkey, tortoise, the holy cross and the Lorraine cross.

A NEW SOCIETY. The Prevention of Cruelty to Parents Organization.

"I'm going to form a new society—a society for the prevention of cruelty to parents," said a young matron. "Everybody and everything is protected nowadays—children, horses, dogs, cats, immigrants—but parents aren't looked after. They are left to fight their own battles. And the unkindness of some children! I lately visited—well, never mind the name, but they're young married people, and the husband's old father lives with them. He's a dear old man, but a little slow and deaf and fussy, as old people have a right to be. And the way that old man was poked into corners made me boil!"

"I know a lovely old woman who lives alone, her children—four of them—scattered far and near, pursuing their own aims and thinking that they are very filial if they write their mother once a fortnight. I declare, it makes me admire the wisdom of an old bachelor I know. Some one pitied him because he was growing old, with no children about him. 'It's a bit lonely,' he said philosophically, 'but I'd rather be childless than to have, like some people I know, children who go their own ways and leave their parents alone in their old age.'"

How Babies Are Dressed in Italy. This photograph of an Italian child about six months old shows the way in which all Italian babies are wrapped round with a kind of bandage many yards long, their arms and legs being so tightly bound that they cannot move them. The Italian women say that if they were not bound thus the children would not grow up straight. A Strand writer adds, "In a small village I visited about forty miles from Genoa, among the mountaineers they were most astonished to see an English baby without any of these extraordinary wrappings."

Honey Sweets. Cakes and candies with a flavor and delicacy all their own may be made with honey as the principal ingredient. Here are recipes for some of them.

Honey Nougat.—Put half a pound of strained honey and white sugar into a saucepan over a slow fire. Cook until brittle when dropped in cold water. Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth and whip into the honey mixture. As it begins to cool add a little extract, preferably lemon or orange, or, better still, the fruit juice, and a pound and a half of almonds blanched and broken into small pieces. Mix thoroughly and spread on oiled paper. When cold cut into strips or bars.

Honey Cream Candy.—Into a granite saucepan put one-half pound of sugar, one cupful of strained honey, one-half cupful of thick, sweet cream and a dessertspoonful of cold water. Stir well together and set aside for an hour. Then place over a moderately hot fire and cook until quite stiff. Pour into buttered plates and when it is cool enough to handle pull and break into pieces.

The Farmer Needs a Bank Account as Much as Any Other Business Man.

THIS BANK is for everyone, not for the rich alone but also for those who have only a little and are striving to make more. We want the business of young men, of business men and especially do we want the accounts of the farmers in this section of the state. To no one is a bank account more of a protection or convenience than the farmer. Our dealings will always be as liberal as safe banking will permit. The farmer who carries a balance with us during part of the year will thus establish a credit that will be worth much to him if he can make more money by borrowing at other times.

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumatic Acid Poisoning

The Urio-O Treatment Expels the Poison From the Blood.

Those sharp, shooting pains through the chest around the region of the heart mean that poisonous uric and rheumatic acid are there ready to spring and grip tightly the muscles controlling the heart's action. Don't neglect these warnings. You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to get it from the inside with Urio-O. It acts with marvelous swiftness upon the muscles, kidneys and blood. Cleans out the sag-like deposits in the muscles, forces the kidneys to perform those duties for which they were designed and neutralizes the acid within the blood.

Urio-O is a liquid taken internally, 3 times daily, and does not contain any morphine, opium or other so-called "pain killers." Sciatica, Muscular, Inflammatory and Articular Rheumatism all yield readily to Urio-O.

BETHEL

J. H. Barrows.

The funeral of J. H. Barrows was held at Bethel Thursday afternoon, April 22d, under the auspices of the Masons. Rev. J. H. Little of South Paris officiated. Mr. Barrows died Tuesday at the Eye and Ear Infirmary at Portland. He was born at Greenwood in 1852.

Early in life he became identified with the manufacture of chairs and continued this business up to within a year of his death. He was actively engaged in business during his entire life, and many years ago made chairs at Snow's Falls, in Paris, and later was for some 26 years at West Paris in the same business.

He went to Bethel in 1886, and established the Bethel Chair Co., with which he continued to be connected until January, 1908, when he retired and since then he has not engaged in active work of any kind.

Milton York of Kansas is the guest of friends here.

Mrs. Anne Rowe Burbank's funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at Garland chapel, and Rev. W. C. Curtis officiated. Mrs. Burbank was born in Bethel in 1833.

Mother's Day.

Responding to the call of that mother love which has its sacred shrine in every human breast and that needed only the magic touch of a gentle woman's fingers to quicken it into active being, the nation will, on May 9, the second Sunday of that month, unite in paying tribute to motherhood. In churches of every creed and in homes both humble and of high degree expression will be given to the noblest form of human love.

Everywhere the white carnation, appropriately selected as a symbol of the day and its meaning, will be in evidence and the millions who thus obey the injunction laid down in the decalogue will pay involuntary tribute to the woman whose love for her mother was the inspiration which gave birth to a movement that has spread all over the land and bids fair to go around the world.

Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia is the founder of Mother's Day, the first observance of which was held last year. Alone and unaided, Miss Jarvis began the work of setting aside each year a special day for honoring the mother. She had no thought of it as the movement would reach beyond her efforts to having the day observed in that city. But she had unwittingly touched a most responsive chord, and its music has now become a swelling chorus.

Origin of the Grapefruit.

The grapefruit, or shaddock, is a native of China and was first brought to the West Indies in 1810 by an Englishman, Capt. Shaddock, for whom the fruit was named. The date of its first introduction into this country has not been recorded, but it was regarded at first as of no value as a fruit, being regarded more as a curiosity and used as an ornament.

It is of the orange family, but its bitter taste was objectionable to most people. This has been modified by cultivation, so that it has in recent years come into general use as a valuable dessert fruit, especially for eating in the morning.

It is now extensively grown in Florida and California, as well as in the West Indies and all tropical countries, being somewhat more tender than the orange, but in much the same manner as its sister fruit; some singly and at others two or three fruits in a cluster.

The name grapefruit was, however, not derived from that, but from the fancied resemblance in flavor of the fruit to the grape. The fruit is also known as the pomelo, pomelo and pomelo.

HIGH-O-ME.

That's the Way to Pronounce Hyomei the Money-Back Catarrh Cure.

As doubt exists in the minds of many readers of the Norway ADVERTISER let us say that the above is the proper pronunciation of America's most wonderful catarrh cure. Frank Kimball, proprietor of Noyes Drug Store, is the agent for Hyomei in Norway and he will sell you an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, and full instructions for use, for only $1.00.

And if it fails to cure acute or chronic catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, croup, hay fever or coughs and colds, he will give you your money back. The person who suffers from catarrh after such an offer as that, must like to snuffle, spit and wheeze, and be generally disgusting.

Read what Mr. G. F. Lowe says:

"I have used Hyomei for a case of nasal catarrh which had bothered me for a long time. I can say that Hyomei killed the germs of the disease and gave me the much sought and needed relief. From this experience I know Hyomei to be a reliable remedy, and I give it the praise and recommendation that it deserves."—G. F. Lowe, R. F. D. No. 7, Allegan, Mich., September 19, 1908. 18c20.

Perceval's den in Burkeley hall was hung with the usual conglomerate collection of trifles on which college youths pride themselves. Strangely enough, however, though otherwise complete, it lacked one of the essentials—indeed, a vital essential—of a student's room decorations. There were no photographs.

The other fellows had pictures of girls in evening gowns, girls in street costume, girls in golf garb, girls on horseback, girls about—always girls. But not a girl's picture adorned Perceval's den except one lonely small miniature, and that stood far withdrawn, hidden on the back of his desk.

Randolph Chase hailed it out on one occasion before Perceval could reach him with a detaining hand.

"What a queer little girl!" Randolph said.

"Put it back," Perceval said shortly, his face aflame.

But the other fellows crowded behind Randolph and looked at the picture over his shoulder.

"Such a mop of hair and such a little face!" said one of them.

"Put it back!" Perceval's tone rasped with irritation. "Put it back, Randolph!"

Randolph, after one glance at the younger man's countenance, set the miniature back on the desk hastily.

"Oh, if you feel that way about it," he apologized.

But the next night when he was alone with Perceval he said: "I don't want to be inquisitive, but I was awfully interested in that girl's face. Who is she?"

Perceval was standing at the window, looking out upon the elm-bordered street, where the big electric lights cast great shadows.

"That," he said without looking around—"that girl, as you call her, is Mrs. Perceval Moore."

"What?" Randolph's tone expressed extreme incredulity. "You surely don't mean?"

Perceval whirled around. "That I am married? Yes."

Randolph whistled. "Well, of all things!" he said. And after that there was silence.

Then Perceval came over and flung himself into a chair opposite Randolph. "I've simply got to tell somebody, Chase," he said. "I'm in an awful fix, and she's the dearest and truest and best little thing in the world."

Randolph reached over and picked up the miniature again. "She truly looks it," he said after he had studied it for a long time.

Perceval choked a little before he answered. "She's an angel, Randolph."

"Then what's the matter?" Randolph questioned.

Perceval leaned forward.

"I've deceived her. She doesn't know that I am in college. She thinks I am earning a good salary in business."

"Well, son," said Randolph Chase, "it seems to me that sort of deception is a kind that a girl can forgive easily enough. I guess she won't be wildly indignant when she finds that next year—it is next year that you come of age, isn't it?—you'll have a big pile of money coming to you. Any girl would be tickled to death to find that."

Perceval shook his head. "Not Annabel," he declared. "Isn't her name dear and old fashioned, Chase?"

"Yes," Randolph agreed. "But why will she object to a million, Perceval?"

"Because she will say that I lied to her," Perceval said slowly, "and Annabel can forgive anything but a lie."

"Out with it!" Randolph probed. "Tell me the whole story. It must be a queer one, and if you don't mind my saying so, old man, she must be a queer girl."

"That's just what she is," said Perceval. "I met her last year at the beach. She was such a quaint, queer little thing that she attracted me. She always wore white, and I would find her sitting on the sand singing little songs to herself. There was an old sea captain to whom she talked a good deal, and I got him to introduce us."

"Well, she had read a lot of books on social equality, and she just simply didn't have any use for the gilded youth with money. What Annabel wanted was a man who worked, preferably with his hands, but, failing that, one who lived in the thick of the fight for existence. And she meant it too. And that is where I fell."

"I was head over heels in love with her," continued Perceval forlornly, "and I simply wouldn't let her go. So I let her believe that I was working my way up in business. The first lie was simple enough and looked like one of those things that could be squared easily enough afterward. But, oh, Chase! I had to back that lie up with details on details until I had lied to her at least ten lies to the hour. Well, we were married before I left the fall. I wasn't of age, and she wasn't, and she wouldn't leave home until I could support her without hampering my business career."

"I knew I had to come back to college or get dad down on me, so I told her to stay," groaned Perceval. "But I made her marry me for fear something might come between us, and I couldn't stand that, Randolph. But think how I'll appear to her, for I've lied in every letter, telling her how business was, and all that."

The young fellow's voice broke. Randolph held out a sympathetic hand.

"She'll forgive you, all right," he said. "But you sit right down tonight and confess, old man. It's not only the right thing, but the best policy, to be perfectly frank with her, and if she's in love with you she'll forgive you."

But Perceval shook his head. "I don't dare," he said huskily. "I am so afraid I'll lose her. Randolph, she is the dearest thing in the world."

"You have said that before," Randolph remarked patiently. "I think you are making an awful mistake, but it will have to work itself out if you won't take any advice."

Then he went to his own room and smoked another pipe on it, and after that he wrote a letter.

And in three days came a letter to Perceval.

"Dear boy," it began, "I must come to you at once. Things at home are in a dreadful state. I will tell you when I reach you. I know you haven't much for us to live on, but I have a little money in the bank that I have saved from my allowance, and I shall follow this note at once. Expect me on the 10:30 a. m. Friday."

"ANNABEL."

Randolph smiled inscrutably. "Find some rooms in a cheap quarter and set up housekeeping."

Perceval's face brightened. "And go out every morning and make her think I've gone to work? You are a genius, Randolph."

It took the two men several hours to find a little furnished apartment that would seem suitable for a young couple with little money. Perceval grumbled disconsolately. "I hate to put my jewel in such a setting," he said.

"Tell her the truth," Randolph again advised, "and you won't have to put up with such cheap things."

But Perceval refused. The next morning he met Annabel at the station, and together they went to the little cheap apartment, and here Annabel wept on his shoulder.

Her account of the trouble at home was somewhat vague, but she was enthusiastic over the thought of her housekeeping. "It will be lovely to work for you," she said.

But Perceval found it anything but lovely. He hated to see her soft white hands in the dishwater. It made him wince to see her bending over the flaming stove, and even the joy of her presence could not take away his sense of infinite guilt.

And so he grew thin and pale and worn.

"You are working too hard," Annabel said one night. And when he shook his head drearily his little white crept out to the janitor's room and telephoned to some one.

"He is punished enough," was her queer message. "Can't you have him go to his old quarters tonight and have it over?"

The next night Perceval said to Annabel: "I have an engagement with Randolph. You won't mind if I leave you, will you, dear?"

"Of course not," she acquiesced. "I can get along just this one time."

Randolph told him that he wished to borrow some of Perceval's books. "I knew they were in your room, and I thought you wouldn't mind coming over," said he. "So I took the liberty of asking you to desert your wife for one evening."

As the two men entered the luxurious quarters Perceval sighed. "To think of my condemning Annabel to such hideousness as that apartment we are living in!" he said, leaning down to turn on the low electric lamp on his study table.

The light flared up and showed the cozy room, the little fire already lighted in the open grate, the blue flame burning under the brass teakettle.

"Why, what?" Perceval demanded, like the big bear in the fairy tale. "Who has been living in my room?"

From behind a tall screen came a little figure in white.

"Oh, Perceval!" cried Annabel and threw herself in his arms.

And when Randolph had explained that he had taken chances and had written the truth to Perceval's little wife and Annabel had explained that she had known he was going to school and not to work ever since she had come to him, and oh, didn't he know that she would love him if he was happy, Perceval drew a long breath of happiness.

"I don't deserve it," he confessed, with his eyes shining, "and we can't live in these rooms, Annabel. But I am going to take my chances with dad, and when he sees what a dear little, queer little thing you are he will give in, and if he doesn't I can earn my living like a man now that I am square with you, sweetheart."

Made the Most of It.

A famous big game hunter visited the Swazis one winter, and the king took a liking to him and loaned him, on his first hunt, the court praiser.

The praiser's business was to laud the king and the king's favorites. The white hunter on his expedition had had luck. He only shot a rabbit. But as he passed with his retinue through the Swazi village on his return the praiser marched before him chanting in a loud voice:

"The great white huntsman has killed a rabbit! Let all the Swazi people hear. It was as big as an ox, as fierce as a lion and as swift as a buck. The brave white huntsman killed it alone and unaided. He killed it with his thunder tube. Listen, ye people! The white huntsman has killed a rabbit! It was as terrible as a tiger, as large as an elephant, and yet the huntsman from afar, the great white slayer, he alone has killed it!"

"There is something paradoxical, after all, in paying one's debts."

"What's paradoxical about it?"

"Why, when you pay down, you settle up."—Baltimore American.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

Oscar F. Bowker of Bryant's Pond has purchased the Stover house on Nichols street and will soon move his family there.

Mrs. Mary Newell has returned to her home in Summer. She has spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Haynes.

Sue Porter, who teaches school in Portland, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Porter, during a short vacation.

Guy Cole, who has been suffering from a severe attack of erysipelas at the head, is much better although still confined to his bed.

Rev. T. N. Kewley, pastor of the Methodist church, will return and continue his work here, by order of the Conference held at Berlin, N. H.

W. Earle Stuart, who has been assisting in the Hallowell high school, has accepted the position as principal of the high school at Strong.

The Board of Trade will hold a meeting of 100 square feet on which to build a building for the purpose of storing the road machines, tools, etc.

Albion Richards, a farmer who lived about three miles from South Paris, disappeared Tuesday morning, April 20th. Search was made for him for a week, but he has not been seen since.

Plans are being made to have a new pipe organ installed in the Baptist church. Through the efforts of the pastor, Andrew C. Gungie, a gift of $800 provided that the church raise an equal amount. The amount has been raised and the additional amount required to install the organ will soon be secured.

The eight anniversary of the Master Horsehoofers' National Protective Union is to be held at Engine House hall, South Paris, Wednesday, May 12th. The sessions will commence after the forenoon trains and close in time to leave in the afternoon. All the blacksmiths in Maine are invited to attend. The Good Cheer society will furnish a dinner to all attending, free, and there will be reduced rates on the Grand Trunk railway from Gorham, N. H., to Portland and way stations.

About 100 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs attended the annual Odd Fellows' sermon at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon, by Rev. T. N. Kewley. Rev. J. H. Little and Rev. A. T. McWhorter assisted in the opening services. Mr. Kewley's text was from the passage, "where God asks Cain, 'Where is thy brother?'" and Cain replies, "Am I my brother's keeper?" He set forth the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man as foundation principles of the Fellowship, as they are of Christianity.

As P. M. Walker was driving home from W. L. Farrar's house, where he is doing some concrete work, last Friday night, one of the reins broke when coming down High street and having no control of the horse, Mr. Walker jumped out of the wagon, and the horse, which was carrying a load of material, ran into the front of H. E. Wilson's as the horse came along and seeing the danger succeeded in frightening the horse to one side so no serious damage was done to his team. He then started in pursuit, caught up to the wagon, jumped on and succeeded in getting hold of the single rein by going out on one thigh, then jumping to the ground, stopped the horse.

Mount Mica Lodge, No. 17, Aurora Encampment, at Mount Pleasant, Rebekah Lodge observed the 80th anniversary of its organization at Odd Fellows' hall, Monday evening, with an attendance of over two hundred, and a fine program consisting of readings, music and addresses was given. Mr. J. H. Short, left, one of the oldest Odd Fellows of the lodge, made a very interesting speech. Grand Warden Miller, N. D. Bolster, the oldest charter members and Hon. James Wright, who has for years belonged to this lodge, made some of the best speeches of the evening. After the social features on the program, refreshments of cakes and ices were served.

Mrs. Mauries Tyler, who was ill last week, is convalescing.

Mauries M. Tyler threw into the river and drove out his pulp wood last week.

James Uhlman and family were recent guests at the home of Mrs. A. L. Whitman.

Karl Stearns has employment with Mills & Rolfs in their saw mill for a few weeks.

Gwendolyn Stearns opened the spring term of school at South Bethel, Monday, April 26th.

The school children of the place, after a nice, long vacation, resumed their school work again Monday.

Mauries Tyler, Clyde and Evander Whitman worked repairing Sand hill just below A. L. Whitman's house, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Bartlett from Bethel village called Sunday to see Mrs. Bartlett's brother, Albert Whitman, who has been confined to the house by illness for a long time.

Middle Intervale.

Veer Bean of Chandler Hill was here a few days ago.

Eva Farwell has again taken charge of the school here.

Ned Carter is hauling boards to the depot for Z. W. Bartlett.

Mrs. Mary Jordan of Lockes Mills is with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Oliver.

Metel Packard came down and stopped at the home of Mrs. J. A. Porter.

Miss Oliver called on a sick neighbor and carried something to her that she could eat.

Mrs. Ellen P. Kimball is sick. Mr. Oliver is quite sick. There has been considerable sickness all about here for some time.

Olen Swan and wife, after an extended visit here, returned to Framingham, Mass., accompanied by their niece, Gladys Buck.

Reading the death of Charles Dunham reminds his wife of his second wife, who was a schoolmate and friend, years ago at a school where she is yet remembered as a fine young woman. We are glad she has children now in her bereavement for a comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kerwin have written to Mrs. Ellen Kimball to let her know that they are ready to take her farm for a home for all of them. Mr. Kerwin is a paper hanger and decorator, but could do good work on a farm. He is now at Newton Center, Mass. But who would not exchange city life for a beautiful home in the country?

We have recently received a souvenir card from cousin Walter L. Wright of Roxbury, Mass., with Bunker Hill monument, Old South church and many other prominent views of the city of Boston. He is the son of Martha D. Wright nee Packard, daughter of Stephen Packard, a soldier we think, and his father a Revolutionary soldier, and a character, with his wife, in "The Spy" by James Fenimore Cooper. She is the only one of that once large family now living and is kindly cared for by her son and daughters, all of whom live with her or very near, and say, "my mother is a beautiful woman." The Stephen Packard cemetery, where once lived this father, mother, sisters and brothers, also her grandfather, Daniel Packard, are buried. There will soon be an iron fence around this yard and always be cared for.

WEST PARIS.

Committed Suicide.

The citizens of this vicinity were greatly shocked, Tuesday morning, to hear of the suicidal death of Thomas Lurvey, an old and respected resident, and prosperous farmer. His home was on a farm a mile or two from West Paris village on Curtis Hill.

His wife, to whom he was very much devoted, died some eight or ten years ago. After a while he secured Nellie Bicknell as housekeeper. He was about 63 years of age. His health was not of the best which made him feel discouraged, and he was subject to spells of despondency.

Monday afternoon he went to the village and got a plough point and was planning to help F. L. Wyman, one of his neighbors, do some ploughing Tuesday, and had the plough loaded in his cart ready to start.

He arose early Tuesday morning and went to the barn. Miss Bicknell thought he was gone an unusually long time so went to discover the reason and found him hanging by a rope tied around his neck out of an upper barn door, the other end of the rope being fastened to a beam inside.

Mr. Lurvey has one daughter, Mrs. E. B. Davis, of South Woodstock and a sister, Mrs. Alvina Dennen, of West Paris. He was a member of Franklin Grange. The funeral services were held at his late home this Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock p. m. Rev. Mr. Brooks of Norway preached the funeral sermon. Interment at West Paris cemetery.

Mrs. E. W. Penley is quite sick and has a trained nurse from Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Willis took a carriage drive to Watford last Friday.

B. F. Turple and family have moved into Elmer Hammond's house at Trap Corner.

D. L. Day and family of Jay Bridge are spending several weeks here with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Penley of Berlin visited relatives here a few days the first of the week.

Mrs. Lucella Morton of South Paris has been visiting her son, Clarence G. Morton, and family.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Young have been making Mr. Young's mother, Mrs. Anna C. Young and other relatives a visit.

Harry Parker and family have gone to Auburn and Ora Marston and family have moved into the rent vacated by him.

The Paris Mfg Co. lost a valuable horse last week. He was found in the stable with a broken leg and had to be killed.

Rev. Olaf Tandburg of Berlin, N. H., filled the pulpit at the Universalist church in the absence of Miss Macduff, Sunday.

The West Paris Public Library association will hold their annual business meeting at Good Will hall next Monday evening, May 3d.

Elmer Tuell is on the gain now. She has been having a severe attack of grip.

Mrs. H. R. Tuell's mother, Mrs. Cynthia H. Curtis, is quite sick with the grip.

A couple of black people, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, came here Saturday, and gave a concert at Dunham's hall, Monday evening. They were entertained at Harry Johnson's.

John L. Marshall has been home for a few days' visit. He entertained the mumps in Arrostook county, while traveling in that section shortly before his visit here.

A special meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held with Mrs. L. C. Bates last week Thursday, to appoint committees and make arrangements for the County convention which is to be held here the 15th and 16th of May.

W. W. Dunham is having an auction at Dunham's hall this Thursday, April 29, at 10 o'clock a. m. If the day is not fair it will be held the first fair day following.

He will sell a lot of farming tools and household furnishings.

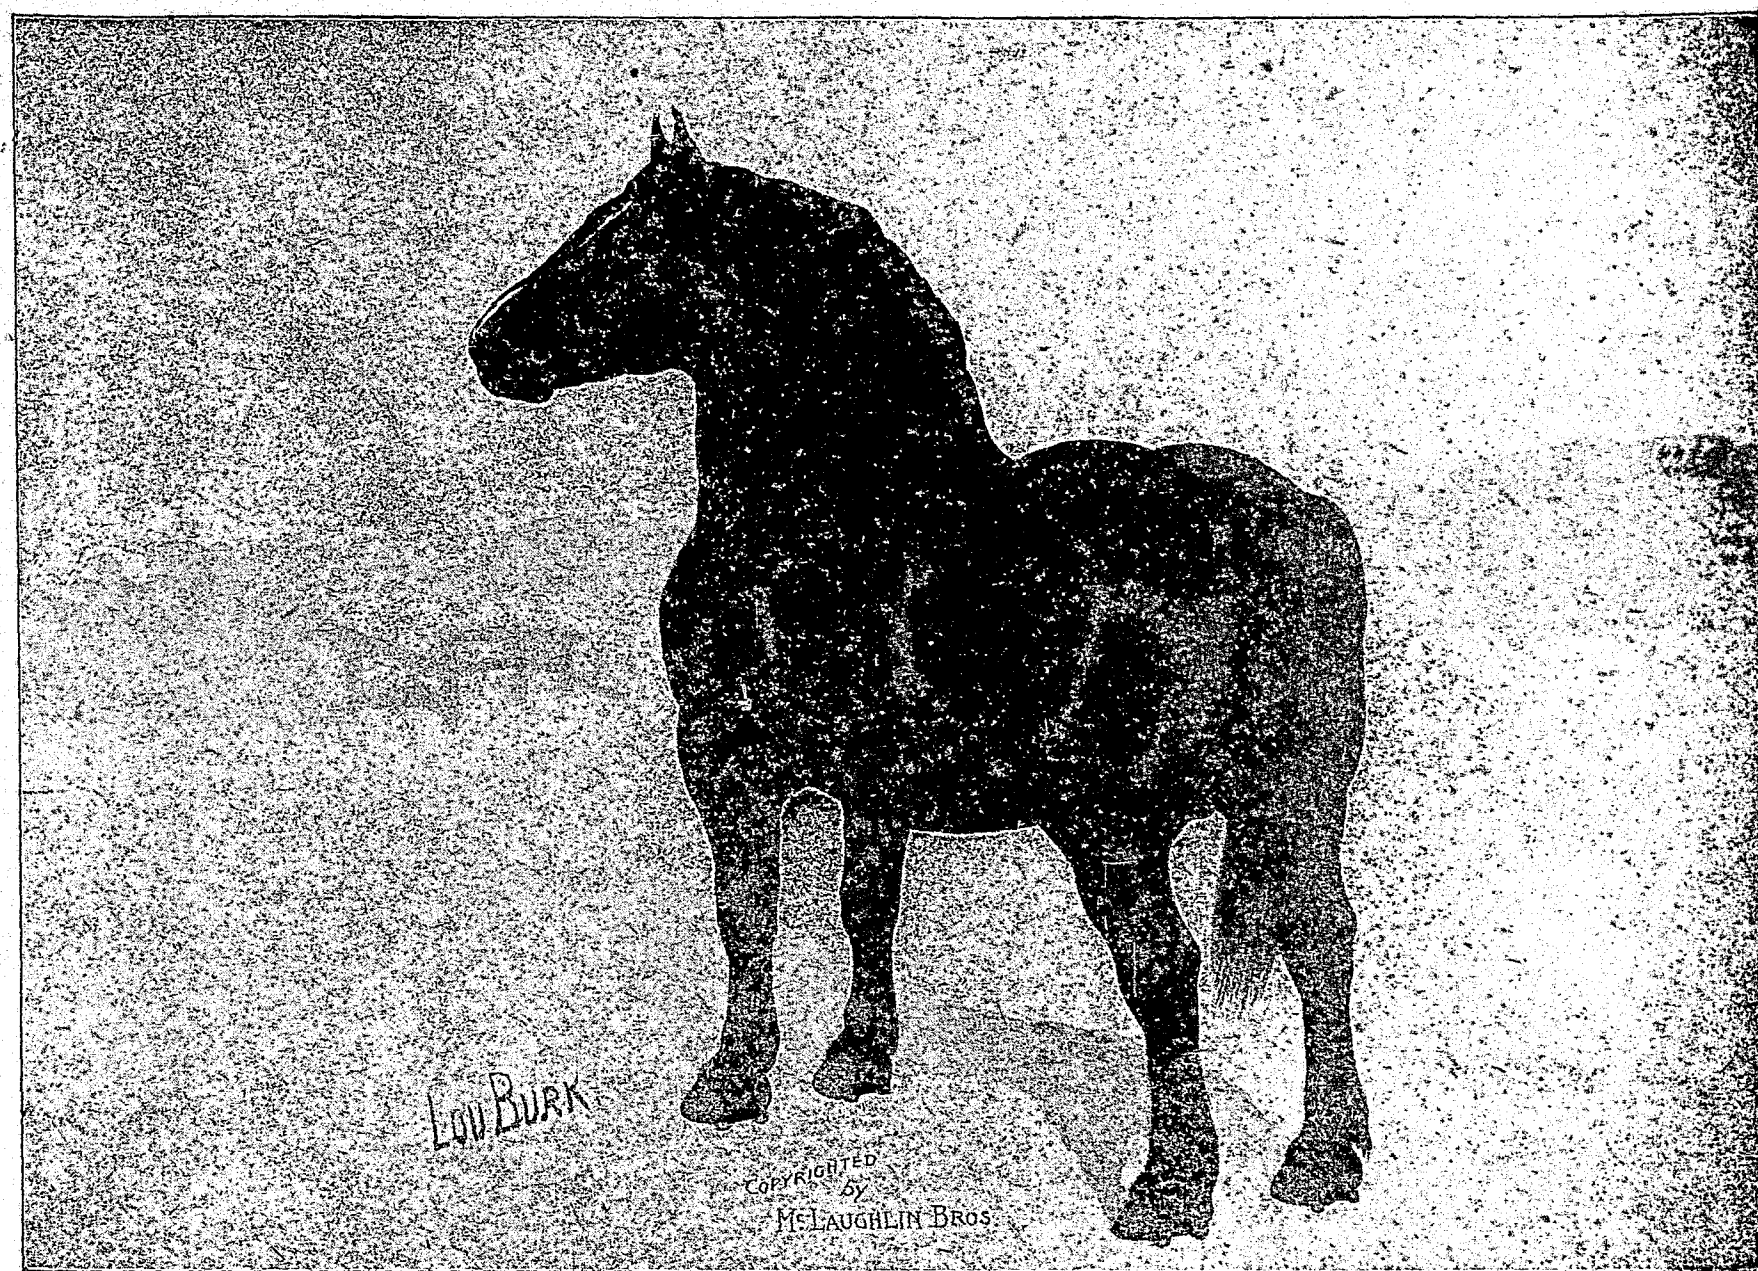

Rev. Seth Benson went to South Woodstock, Thursday forenoon, to attend the funeral of Moses M. Russell, who died from the effects of a shock Tuesday morning at the home of his son, Elwin F. Russell. Interment at Bryant's Pond.

Dr. O. K. Yates was taken sick last Thursday with pneumonia. Dr. Littlefield of South Paris and Dr. Bradbury of Norway have been in attendance with Dr. Wheeler. He has a trained nurse from Portland. He has been very sick but the case is a hopeful one at this writing.

James H. Barrows, a former resident and prominent business man of this place, was brought here for interment in the cemetery beside his first wife, Mary Fuller Barrows, from his late home in Bethel last Thursday afternoon, accompanied by about eighteen members of the Bethel Masonic lodge and a fine retinue. They were met here by twenty members of Granite lodge of West Paris, and escorted to the grave, where the Bethel lodge performed the burial service of the lodge.

The Cherry Blossom sale at the Universalist church last week was quite a success. The tables both fancy and dining were decorated with white crepe paper and sprays of pink cherry blossoms and very pretty and attractive. The supper was well patronized, after which games were played. One very interesting game deserves mention—15 questions were asked, the answers to be found on the two faces of a common American cent.

Auction at the residence of the late Alphonzo Moulton, South Harrison, Saturday, May 8th at 10 o'clock a. m. Moving machine, horse rake, wagons, house hold goods etc.

John Houghton of Houghton.

The death of John Houghton occurred at the home at Houghton, Thursday, April 22. He had recently suffered from pneumonia. He was about 83 years old. He had been twice married and leaves two daughters by his first wife. His home town was named in his honor.

The deceased leaves two daughters, Helen, who kept house for him and Florence who is a teacher in the Hyde Park (Mass.) schools, also five children: Frederick Abbott, Wm. Abbott and Ryder Abbott, all of Byron; Mrs. Lyman Smith of Canton and Mrs. R. B. Stratton of Rumford.

The funeral was held at the home in Houghton at 2 p. m. April 23. The pastor, from this life of Mr. Houghton removes from this section a man of more than ordinary ability and one who, although not a resident of Rumford, had been closely identified with its development.

He had been for years a trustee of the Rumford Falls Trust Co. and was interested financially in other business enterprises in town.

For many years he was post-master at Houghton and also treasurer of the town of Byron.

Has Been Promoted.

C. R. Keniston, son of Mrs. Granville P. Green, Bridgton, a Lovell born boy, has been promoted from air brake instructor on the Maine Central to general air brake instructor on the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Keniston's resignation went into effect April 15 when he left the present position and will take up his new quarters at Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Mr. Keniston was born in Lovell, May 11, 1884, where he received a common school education, this being supplemented by a Correspondence School course. He entered the employ of the Maine Central as fireman, March 3, 1898, working as such until 1907 when he was promoted to engineer. June 16 of the same year he accepted the position of air brake instructor which position he has filled with great success.

He also served as chairman on the joint protective board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen.

He is an example of what a young man can do, equipped only with a common school education, who makes an honest effort to succeed.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Paw Paw, Mich.—"I suffered terribly from female ills, including inflammation and congestion, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I can now say I am a well woman."

EMMA DRAPER.

Another Operation Avoided.

Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what I feel about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPRELLING, 111 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

Reading Aloud.

A famous doctor not long ago advised one of his women patients to read aloud an hour each day for the benefit of her lungs. As a easy cure, thought the woman, but to her surprise she not only found the exercise fatiguing, but learned to her surprise that she read abominably. Not one person in a hundred reads well. The voice is pitched so high that the throat suffers, or is so low and mumbly that listeners are maddened in the effort to follow.

To read for hours without feeling it, throw the voice well forward, so that vibrations strike the upper lip, and catch so that there is no strain, either on throat muscles or on the ear of the listener.

There are some persons who read as if in bonds to get through a given number of words in a stated time. Very fatiguing, and it is hard to follow and is particularly deplorable if one is reading to a convalescent; equally bad is a dragging style that makes one long for a prod. Read quickly, but enunciate each syllable clearly and distinctly.

To read as if one were practicing elocution is extremely bad style. Never aim at expressiveness; if you have a fine sense of the text, unconsciously the voice takes on the correct modulation. Stilted or artificial reading is not to be tolerated. Learn to read naturally, in a pleasant voice, with special attention to enunciation. It is an art no woman can afford to be without. There are many times when one must read aloud, without choice, and a consciousness of being a poor reader does not make it easier.

Another advantage of reading aloud is the attention it calls to pronunciation. Words that one has read silently from youth we often find we have mispronounced only when they are first read aloud. For this reason it is important that girls and boys are trained in reading aloud, beyond what they get in school. It is well to keep a pad and pencil at hand to jot down any word of whose meaning and pronunciation one is not certain.

EAST STONEHAM.

Bert Kendall and wife visited his parents in Lovell, April 25th.

Fred Kilgore of Waterford was at Frank McAllister's Monday, looking for cows.

Fernando McAllister has been very sick with the grip but is improving slowly.

Will McAllister of Waterford visited his mother, Mrs. Sophia McAllister, Sunday.

Asa Keniston of Albany and Hazel Giles of Stoneham called on Mrs. J. C. Files, Sunday.

The sick ones are all improving but Mrs. E. H. McAllister, who is very poorly this spring.

Fred Warren of Denmark called on friends in this place and visited his mother, Mrs. Warren Johnson.

Fred Bartlett went to Norway Friday. Mr. Bartlett has sold a pair of horses to Y. H. Littlefield of this place.

Smelts are Running.

The smelts are running up the brooks and smelting parties are now the order of the day—or rather of the night—for the fish are more active in the small hours, running up the brooks in schools, where they are dipped up in many places by the bushel.

Making Samplers Fad of Moment

Every woman who is so fortunate as to possess a sampler worked by her great-grandmother is now engaged in making a reproduction of it, for those old fashioned arts are the fad of the moment. One group of young matrons has formed a sampler club and at the bridge matrons each wear a stitch away at her sampler when she is a "dummy."

One of these women has three wee daughters, and they, too, are working samplers. They do not consider it a task, either, as great-grandmother undoubtedly did. They think it a privilege to be allowed to work at their samplers. It is possible to reproduce the old samplers exactly, even to the exquisitely soft faded tints, for the shops make a specialty of making such reproductions. They gladly copy from old samplers any shade they have not in stock.

Wood working, too, is now a fad for wealthy women who find time hanging heavily on their hands and have the ambition to do a neat set of "seers" for their children. Others are even attempting tapestries as the French women of the old regime do to this day. The frame for this work is quite decorative for a boudoir corner, and well gives an opportunity to show off pretty hand and handsome rings to the best advantage.

The coverlets which thrifty ancestors spun and wove are beyond the power of their degenerate daughters, and their reproduction is left to persons who work for pay. The George Vanderbilts have become greatly interested in the reproduction of these hand-woven spreads, which gives the people of the villages and mountain hamlets adjacent to Billmore not only employment, but a new interest in life.

The coverlets were made on hand looms during the peaceful time in the middle of the 18th century, men and women working together during courtship, or when duties permitted, after marriage. Oddly enough, blue and white were the only colors combined, unless a little black appeared in the design, to emphasize the unique shapes of birds or flowers, and the blue was a deep shade of dove. Red was hardly ever chosen, which seems strange, as a taste for subdued colors was not often shown by the early settlers.

Farmers' Best Crop.

They do things differently in New York, which has an income ten times as big as Maine, and which is already engaged in the real work of planting out pine trees, not on paper or by proxy, but by the hundreds or the thousands, but by the millions.

Sometimes when we see forests of pine butched, before it reaches its maturity, it seems as though people have a mania for chopping.

Our forests are not taken care of. They are allowed to grow up anyway without thinning out the poorer trees and leaving just enough healthy trees to grow to advantage on the land, and then when they are about one-half or two-thirds grown are sold for a song, and we have all seen the land after it has been cut over.

Thought Himself Clever.

AN HOURLY WORKER.

A Trained Nurse Abandons Her Profession For Variety's Sake.

"What is your doing now?" asked the girl of the old friend she hadn't seen in a long while. "The last time I met Caroline she told me she was going to resign from her position as visiting nurse for X. hospital because she couldn't stand working under a committee of women. Months ago she told me she had done all the private nursing one mortal woman could bear in a lifetime. What has she taken up, poultry raising or literature?"

"She's doing hourly work," returned Caroline's sister. "It seems a very peculiar occupation to me, but she's making money, and she says that for the first time in years she is bound down to a 'case' or an institution."

"What kind of hourly work is she doing?" asked the girl in a puzzled voice.

"Here is the card she's sending out," said Caroline's sister.

On one side of the card was a name and address. On the other side it was announced that Miss — offered her services by the hour; that she would take care of and amuse children, act as guide for shoppers and sightseers, read aloud to invalids, chaperon young women to theater or opera, do secretarial work, etc.

"She didn't take up the work, though. She happened into it," explained Caroline's sister.

"Dr. G. mentioned to Caroline that a former patient of his needed some one to stay with her baby certain evenings in the week; she and her husband teach in a night school. Caroline, who had left X. hospital, offered herself. She still takes care of that baby four evenings a week, from 7 o'clock to 11, and is paid $1.50 a time. The baby sleeps all the evening, so she has nothing to do but sit there and read."

"Next, Caroline heard of a mother who wanted her little boy to walk home from school, but was afraid to have him come home alone and had no one to send for him. She pays Caroline $1 a time to escort the child the fifteen blocks five afternoons in the week. Good price for just taking a walk? Perhaps, but the mother is willing to pay it because Caroline is a trained nurse and knows so much about children, so in these various occupations her time is employed and her pocketbook well filled."

AN INEXACT SCIENCE.

Cooking is a Subtle Sixth Sense—"You Mix With Brains."

Learning to cook is one of those mysterious things that you learn to do by doing. Standing beside the cook and watching her, taking notes and writing recipes and filling a book against the evil day when you are without a girl is but putting off the critical hour when you must put your own finger in the pie and see if you can evolve a success.

One never learned to cook by rule. She cooked and took the proof of the pudding in the eating. It is the fashion today to talk of the science of this and that and the exact sciences, but when it comes to cooking the expert cook will declare that it is to be written down an inexact science, if any at all.

Ingredients refuse to bring exactly the same results in successive mixings after the rules, the oven acts queerly, the temperature of the pans, the wind blowing over the kitchen window in unseen and unthought of mischief, the flour was "runny" or stiffer than you thought it, and so it goes from success to failure and back again unless you possess that peculiar cooking sense and mix your performance with brains.

It is a subtle sixth sense that tells you something else must be done when you are finding out that the old time rule goes astray and the books say "you mix with brains," using your judgment.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A mustard plaster for a young child should be half hour.

It is said very strong tea will stop bleeding from a cut.

A dab of eau de cologne will often remove a slight red spot from the face.

A couple of soda minis or a teaspoonful of cooking soda in water will often stave off a sick headache.

One ounce of sage in a pint of boiling water is a fine preventive against gray hair. Use an effusion of this once in twenty-four hours.

A teaspoonful of strong black tea tied up in a piece of muslin, with boiling water poured over it, may be left on the eye all night for a sty.

THE VETERINARY.

The best preventive of garget is clean, careful milking and a vigorous rubbing and kneading of the affected part of the udder at the first sign of trouble. Three or four days of such treatment will usually ward off the disease.

To Cure Colds in Horses.

The following remedy is given by a veterinarian for coughs and colds in horses: Tincture aconite root, one ounce; fluid extract belladonna, one ounce; aconite, two ounces; sufficient water to make one quart; mix. Give a tablespoonful every hour or two or three times a day, as needed.

For Growths on Knees.

A cow with a sore lump growing on the knee may be treated as follows: Mix one ounce of lard and two drams of blue vitriol of mercury and apply it as a strong blister to the swelling repeatedly until it disappears. Sometimes simple pressure with bandages, applied an increasing length of time daily for some weeks, will do it.

Indigestion in Pigs.

In cases of acute indigestion in pigs eruptions occur and a staggering gait is noticed. Constipation and colic often accompany these symptoms. If the feed is at fault change it and provide clean quarters and a well balanced, easily digested ration. Roots, fruits, and the trimmings from fruit trees are useful. Also give the swine access to salt and charcoal.

Prevention For Scours.

A successful Iowa hog raiser says he puts a pall of coal ashes, a couple of handfuls of salt and a little alfalfa slaked lime, all well stirred together, in a trough where the hogs can help themselves. It helps to make good bone in the growing pigs, keeps the stomach sweet and prevents scours.

A Tonic For Cattle.

When cattle are healthy they need no blood cleanser to keep them so; when they are out of balance a corrective is indicated. The following is a tonic and diuretic and may be used for a week or two; then it should be discontinued unless you have an exceptional case. It may be again used after a week or two of interruption: Powdered nitrate of potassium, one pound; powdered gentian, one pound; powdered anise, one pound; powdered Jamaica ginger, one-quarter pound; oilmeal, four pounds; mix. Two or three tablespoonfuls in feed twice a day.

Evergreens Done Brown.

"But why did you lead the man on? Why didn't you give him a rebuff the moment he began trying to flirt with you?" "I wanted him to make a confession so that I could boast about it to my husband."—Minneapolis Journal.

In Five Minutes.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist then ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pope's Diapiesis and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms. If your appetite is broke, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapiesis. 14-18

A Visit to Canada.

By B. G. MCINTIRE.

The land here is practically all Government land, outside that actually settled, and the lumbermen work under license from the Canadian Government, and pay a small stumpage per thousand feet.

About one o'clock we arrived at a lumber camp, pleasantly located on a fine sheet of water, about three miles in length, and this was our home for most of the following week.

This camp was occupied by about twenty-five men, all French Canadians, and to our surprise on entering we found a woman, and six months old baby, the wife and child of the camp cook.

The woman was a busy, wholesome looking French woman, and was engaged in making up some dozen great loaves of bread, to go out to the never absent clay oven.

More surprises followed in the shape of a cow, hens, dogs, and a separator, which was the surplus milk to be made into butter.

It is needless to say we were hungry, and were soon engaged in eating a substantial camp dinner, during which the writer's request, our friend Dioning, to make up some dozen great loaves of bread, to go out to the never absent clay oven.

He replied "We Monsieur," and true enough, when we came in about dark, after several miles tramp in the woods, we found him with twelve pounds of splendid red spot trout, which he had just caught in fact.

We first gazed at the cook's hand with financial faith, and pork fat and fire soon accomplished the rest, after which we began feasting on trout, boiled potatoes, hot tea, and some of the bread which the Madam was preparing on our arrival.

Those of you who have actually "roughed it" in the woods, with the cold, bracing air, and ample exercise, can readily understand how good the meal, and other which followed, tasted to us.

During the next few days we ate trout, and in fact anything put before us, and it would be a safe statement to make, that we were regarded as hearty boarders, blessed with good health, and splendid appetites.

The evening was spent in discussing the conditions which surrounded us, making plans for the following day, and listening to songs by the men, who seemed happy, carefree, and contented.

The singing was mostly by two of three young men, who sang in soft voices, French, what seemed to be serious or sentimental songs.

One young man called "Jimmie," had lived in N. Y., and learned to speak English very well.

He sang rollicking Irish songs, and had evidently spent more time on the Bowery than he had at Sunday school.

The camp crew played euchre, and a game called forty-seven, but ever well behaved and orderly, restrained perhaps to some extent, by the presence of the cook's wife, who sat in the privacy of a small room, peering off in one corner of the cooking room.

Every one smoked, for the most part using home raised Canadian tobacco, and the small stock of cigars, and the occasional pipe, dried around the big stove, the greasing of moccasins with whale oil, or some rancid grease, combined to make a scent which was not exactly like the "roses which bloom in the spring."

At nine o'clock came bed time for in the lumber camps, it is a case of "early to bed, and early to rise," and we crowded up in the upper bunk on one side of the camp, in a row of twelve men, with twelve more under us.

The bed was fir boughs with a blanket spread over them, and there was not much need of covering, as the heat in the upper bunk was almost unbearable; our friend Dioning digging a hole out between two logs, and sleeping with his nose pointed at that.

Some snored, some talked in their sleep, and with an occasional sniffer from the baby in the other part of the camp, the plaintive lull from the lone one, only separated from us by the log wall of the camp, furnished entertainment for those who did not sleep readily.

One of our own party snored worse than all the rest, a noisy snore, resembling a freight locomotive working up a hard grade, and at last the writer suggested to Morse, that the "snab," the man beside him, which he did very forcibly, and then had to apologize to Mr. Ward, as he had stabbed the wrong man.

The next morning after an early breakfast, we started for the woods, guided by an old Frenchman, who knew all the surrounding country; every hill, lake, and stream being familiar to him, having hunted, trapped and fished here for years.

This old man had several lines of traps, covering a circuit of about seventy-five miles.

He had one other which he thought would bring $140 to Quebec. We carried a lunch with us, and did not return until dark, and had a good supper so thick in places, that Mr. Ward said "had to tip his snow-shoes up sideways to get between the trees," but this did not surprise some of us, as he wore the kind used there, which looked like an inflated balloon on a country fair ground.

We found immense quantities of spruce and fir timber in all our wanderings, and also discovered that moose, caribou, bear, and lynx are very plentiful in that section.

Caribou are many times in herds of ten to twenty, and we found their tracks in many places, as thick as tracks of cattle around a farm yard.

The snow was so deep, and they would go where they pleased, feeding on blown down fir trees, going to the lakes for water, and in places had pawed through five or six inches of shell ice around the shores, to get at water.

The guide assured us that it would be very easy to get a caribou, but this certainly seemed very probable, but as our only gun was our revolver, we contented ourselves with picking off a few partridges.

We saw two beaver dams in good condition, but not recently occupied.

This country would be a paradise to the hunter and fisherman, as game and fish abound, and are practically "unlimited."

Front could be caught freely through the ice, using a piece of beef or pork for bait, and were even caught in the water hole in front of the camp.

The methods of lumbering in this section seem old and behind the times, the lumber all being hauled by one horse team on narrow sleds, and you would meet half a dozen of these teams winding along the narrow roads, hauling "less than the same number of horses working double, with half the number of men."

The horses used here looked well, and were evidently well fed and cared for, the feed being pressed hay, and native grown oats and wheat.

The wages paid men in this section, was nearly as much, as for the same kind of work in Maine.

In this locality about ten thousand cords of pulp wood, and a large amount of cedar, is being cut this season.

The Muncy Bay Lumber Co. and the St. Simons Lumber Co. are also large operators.

Schoolers take the pulp wood, and other lumber products, from the different wharves to Quebec, and other points, for shipment by rail.

The following days and night spent in the woods and at the camp, were practically repetitions of the first, with the addition of visits to other camps in the vicinity.

At one camp we saw seven children, one a small baby, suspended in a cloth hammock several feet above the ground, at an other were three women who although they spoke no English, make hot tea for us, and cheerfully allowed us to thaw our frozen limbs.

Here were a number of barefooted children, which appeared to be happy.

On one of our expeditions, one of our party claimed to have discovered Mt. Ararat, but finally decided it was Mt. "Where-are-you-at."

We had a great desire to push on to the Indian settlement at Saguenay river, where about five hundred Indians make their homes, and live by hunting, fishing, and basket making, but lack of time prevented, at least until a later visit.

Many regrets were expressed by all members of our party, that we had no camera, as one hundred "snap shots," of the peculiar and laughable scenes, would have been a treasure to each of us.

After about one week spent in the woods, came the time to say good bye to our friends of the lumber camp, and with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret we started on the return trip to the settlement.

Darkness came on while still in the woods, bumping against trees, tipping over now and then, and making slow progress.

Messrs. Dioning, Ward, and Short were in the team in advance, and hearing a great shout we hastened to their assistance, finding that they had tipped over a bank into the woods.

The horse had straggled out into the road and disappeared with the sleigh, leaving our friends picking up the spilled baggage.

Everything was now loaded on one sleigh, and we plodded on, Short and Dioning ahead on foot in pursuit of the runaway.

They overtook the outfit after about two miles tramp, the horse cast in the snow, and the sleigh on top of him. This was a time long to be remembered by all the party, particularly by Mr. Ward, who badly froze his nose and one ear.

At last we came in sight of the lights of St. Simons, and they were indeed welcome, but all our troubles were soon forgotten as we gathered around the well lighted table of Madame Bellier.

The next evening we reached the Laurentide Inn, at Point Au Pic, after a hard but uneventful ride, and picked the bones of a goose which had been prepared for our party, thanks to friend Short and the telephone.

Bidding our friends Short and Dumais good bye with many good wishes for their future welfare, the next morning at seven o'clock crossed again on board the steamer Champlain, pushing our way across the broad St. Lawrence.

Reaching the main line of the Inter-colonial R. R. in due time, and without any particular incident, we took the Maritime Express, and reached Lewis about two p. m.

After dinner, and a much needed visit to a barber, we crossed the ferry to Quebec and securing a two-seated sleigh spent a few hours in visiting some of the places of interest with which Quebec abounds, among them the Citadel with its high walls, frowning guns and red coated soldiers, Chateau Frontenac owned by the Canadian Pacific R. R., and then a walk to the most costly hotels in the city, the Parliament buildings, Plains of Abraham, Wolfe and Montcalm monument, Dufferin Terrace, and other places too numerous to mention.

Quebec with its historic associations and quaint old buildings, probably contains more places of interest to the stranger than any city of its size in America.

About seven o'clock p. m. we parted from our companions of the past ten days, Dioning and Ward, who went to their homes by the Quebec Central R. R., and started on an all night ride toward the good old State of Maine, reaching Norway the next morning, after a journey of some hardships, but many pleasures, leaving us an ample fund of pleasant recollections of the days spent in Canada.

Helpful Hints on Hair Health.

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a mite which also produces baldness. Never use a comb of British hair, for it is someone else's. No matter how clean the owner may be, these articles will be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp.

It is easier to catch microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush often produces the cause of dandruff. Never try on anybody else's hat for the reason that many a husband in a nesting place for microbes, if you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy which we positively know will cure these troubles, and we are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cure you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim.

This remedy is called Rexall "98" Hair Tonic. It is the most scientific remedy for all scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that cures it so effectively. We know this because of the results it has produced in hundreds of cases.

Rexall "98" Hair Tonic will positively banish dandruff permanently, restore natural color which has been lost, brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, removes dandruff, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody in Norway who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that Rexall "98" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. R. P. Stone, Norway, Me.

Agreeableness, the Keynote.

The guest who is agreeable is the one who comes again. The girl who never gets a second invitation to visit would hold an unenvied position in her society.

Promptness is a winner of popularity with your hosts. No personal charm will outweigh chronic lateness.

Agreeableness has lost many a girl coveted invitations. No one hankers for the society of a person who forces her personality.

It is as possible to be aggressively agreeable as aggressively disagreeable. The girl of neutral manners may not be brilliant but she is popular.

The agreeable guest is the one who is not always thinking of her own good times. She is ready for any gayety, but does not look injured when pleasures are slack.

The girl who can content herself with a bit of fancy work when her hostess is busy will never have a sigh of relief drawn for her leaving.

That book on work must not prove so absorbing that it is left with visible reluctance. It is one thing to be able to entertain one's self, another to do it so thoroughly as to leave the hostess out of the reckoning.

The agreeable guest knows how to "fit in." She wins the heart of the old grandmothers and has the children tagging at her heels; she turns in to help when the cook leaves or will preside at dinner in the sudden absence of her hostess.

A "house mother" is a large part of a guest's agreeableness. To have a visitor who is slipping up your household to retail his happenings later is not a comfortable feeling.

Be brilliant and amusing if it is in you; your hosts appreciate liveliness; but see to it that your wit has no sting. While your hearers laugh they win in dread of their turn bound to come.

The agreeable guest does not make unnecessary trouble. Make a desperate struggle for neatness when on a visit even though a confirmed sloven.

No agreeable guest has food fads. If you cannot eat what is set before you when on a visit better stay at home.

The woman who must diet under orders from a physician need not decline invitations, but she should send her hostess beforehand a list of forbidden or obligatory foods.

The woman who is mourning when on a visit will make the situation as easy as possible for her host. Let it be distinctly understood that you will not come if your friends refuse invitations because you cannot accompany them; and, if necessary, waive your own feelings in the matter of accepting small pleasures.

The agreeable guest is not cranky, officious and hypocritical; nor given to showing off, monopolizing conversation and demanding attention. She appreciates what is done for her and never thinks of fault finding at what is not done.

What would you take?

Suppose you were required to live for a certain length of time on only one article of food. Which would you choose?

There is one food that stands without a rival for such a test. Quaker Oats is that one. It furnishes more strength with least wear and tear on the digestive organs than any other food. You'll feel well and strong at the end of the time. Try it. Don't stop eating other things, but eat more Quaker Oats and you'll notice the gain in strength.

The regular size package of Quaker Oats sells at 10c, the large family size packages cost 25c, and the family size package containing a piece of beautiful china for the table costs 30c. All grocers sell these.

Eat Quaker Oats daily for breakfast, it strengthens you for the day's work.

Stockwell-Bryant.

We clip the following from the Boston Globe. Miss Bryant will be remembered by her many friends in Oxford, where she formerly lived.

Myron Stockwell and Ira Belle Bryant, both of Baldwinville, were married in Chichester at 3 o'clock April 21st, by Rev. Richard Peters, a former pastor of the Congregational church of Baldwinville. After their marriage ceremony they left for Marion. Mr. Stockwell is a foreman of the farm at the hospital cottages for children and Miss Bryant is a teacher in the same institution, a graduate of the Templeton high school, class of 1907. They will live in Baldwinville at the hospital cottages, where they will continue their present occupations.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil is the means of life and enjoyment of life to thousands: men, women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food when you hate it and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

A Jolly Party.

It was a jolly party that filled the pleasant rooms of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Grant's home and enjoyed their hospitality on Thursday evening of last week, the occasion being a whist party in honor of their son Dana. There were five tables filled. The prizes were won by Elden Goodwin and Eva Fiske, first, the boobies falling to Roy Brown and Rena George. After refreshments of ice cream and cake were served, a social time was enjoyed listening to the selections from the phonograph and the reading by Earl Brown was especially pleasing.

Chas. Farrington of Mechanic Falls, was in town, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Grant and son, were in Bethel, Saturday.

Mrs. James Crooker and son Harold, were in Lewiston, Saturday.

Mrs. Herbert Crooker is visiting her mother, in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Alice Farrington is entertaining her aunt, Mrs. Collins of Gloucester.

Alice King returned Monday, from a visit with her sister in Massachusetts.

Look at the Difference

6 GALLONS DEVCOE 6 GALLONS OTHER PAINT

One-third of the paint-money goes for the paint, two-thirds for the painter. It all goes by the gallon; look out for the Gallons. The least-gallons paint is Devco.

Fewer Gallons or No Pay

Paint half of your house with any other paint; paint half with Devco. The other-half will take the most gallons; if not, we will make no charge for Devco.

Wears Longer or No Pay

Here's another offer. Paint half of your house with lead-and-oil; the other half with Devco lead-and-zinc. In three years the lead-and-oil half will need repainting, while the Devco half will be about like new. If not, we will give you the paint for the whole house.

OXFORD.
Mock Trial.

The Mock Trial by members of the Division S. of T. at their lodge room on Thursday evening is certainly deserving of comment. The libellant was Mrs. Lillian Parrott who brought action against her husband, Edwin J. Parrott, for abusive divorce, the charge being cruel and abusive treatment.

The judge was George Hazen, a member of Oxford bar and it is needless to say that he interpreted the fine points of law in a masterly way, but also umpired the game in an impartial manner.

The lawyers, Harry Andrews for the prosecution and Alton Delano for the defense, were a likely pair and acquitted themselves in a creditable manner. Lawyer Andrews showed himself a master of the art of cross examination and set several traps for the opposing witnesses, but in spite of his skill and increasing exertions, the witnesses managed to wiggle out and turned the laugh on him. The jury composed of three women and three men was a more intelligent lot, but not so often seen in the jury box.

John W. Chadbourne, our agent for the prevention of cruelty to animals, had charge of the jury and John kept his eagle eye upon them every minute, so that the jury did not go to sleep. The witnesses for the prosecution made a most favorable impression. The spectators remarked on their neat and tidy appearance and their testimony was given unhesitatingly, why even the women were not satisfied in answering yes or no but were willing to tell all they didn't know.

At the close of the testimony for the prosecution the spectators sat back in their chairs with satisfied grins of approval as much as to say, she has won her case and I am glad of it. But there are always two sides to a question and this proved no exception. When the bunch of witnesses for the defense testified and gave their testimony it changed the complexion of the case in a manner to make the court, jury and spectators gasp with horror.

They were the most cheerful liars that ever graced a court room. And even the venerable judge, a lawyer himself and a hero of many just such hard fought battles, had to blush for some of the truths told, and at close of trial complimented the witnesses for their lively imaginations.

Why, one of the witnesses for the defense swore he was looking through two inch steam pipe twenty feet long, filled with steam, and saw the defendant give his wife a $20 bill to appease her anger so that she would not hit him with a fist.

After each witness had testified and the lawyers had argued for and against, it was evident the jury was in a most deplorable condition. Another hour of such torture and the male members of the jury would have been in a state of utter collapse. The judge, however, was merciful and took them to a fatherly and soothing manner, partially restoring their appetite for comprehension.

The judge's charge was a masterpiece of the art law. He gave of saying much and meaning little. He carefully noted and explained the nice points of law and told the jury that if the preponderance of evidence favored either victim even so much as by the weight of a hair they should render a verdict for the other side.

The jury by this time were ready for their supper and under care of the sheriff wobbled to the banquet hall. After a careful deliberation they reported an agreement. The judge ordered them brought into the courtroom.

"Have you agreed upon a verdict?" he asked.

The foreman William Robinson replied, "We have."

"What is it?" asked the judge.

"Guilty as to both parties."

Oxford Grange, No. 48 will hold its regular meeting on Saturday evening, May 1st. There will be considerable work before the grange, balloting upon candidates and initiatory work in the first and second degrees. The literary program brought over from April 17 will be rendered during the evening.

Harry J. Newton of the Congregational church on Sunday last. There was no service at the Methodist church and several of the regular attendants of the latter church were in Mr. Newton's audience. Mr. Newton's talk was interesting and instructive. His subject, "Why I am a Christian," was well taken and his points of argument well made and forcibly brought out. Mr. Newton is earnest and his manner of delivering his words is made more earnest from the fact that he not only speaks with the word of mouth but his personality speaks in every gesture and movement.

On Friday evening April 23 the ladies of the Methodist society gave a supper in the vestry to the members and friends of the church and Sunday School. A large party was present who greatly enjoyed the occasion. After supper a program was given, singing by the choir, solo by Jennie LeBroke, and remarks by the Superintendent, Mr. Holden, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Delano. One of the interesting features of the occasion was the presentation of a friendship quilt by Mrs. Augustus Jones in behalf of the Ladies' circle to the pastor, Rev. Mr. Farnsworth who accepted the gift in a graceful manner and also gave an interesting talk on the subject of Opportunity. The Brotherhood of St. Paul was present and when called upon, Arthur Walker responded for the club presenting the pastor with an elegant shaving set. Although it was a surprise it was accepted with a few well chosen words.
